

contributions by you

Welcome to the meme-book

A participatory exploration into our relationship with memes, objects and spaces.

This meme-book exercise is designed to explore how memes move beyond the screen and become a part of how we read objects, spaces and each other. This book invites you to contribute, annotate and input whatever you wish.

There are no right or wrong answers. Do not take it too seriously and feel free to respond.

Thank you for taking part as you are shaping the meaning of the book.

A few notes...

- You can use images, text, links, doodles, GIFS, and handwriting.
- You can use any font and size but please use one colour that hasn't been used by another contributor.
- You can do anything that feels natural; just do not delete anything that is already on the page.
- Feel free to annotate over others.
- Have fun! The point is participation, not perfection.

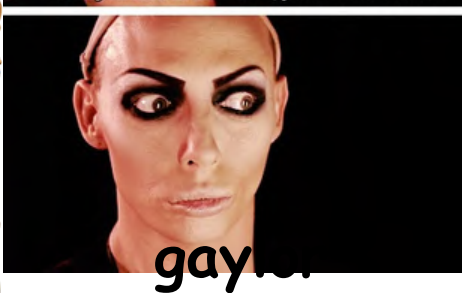

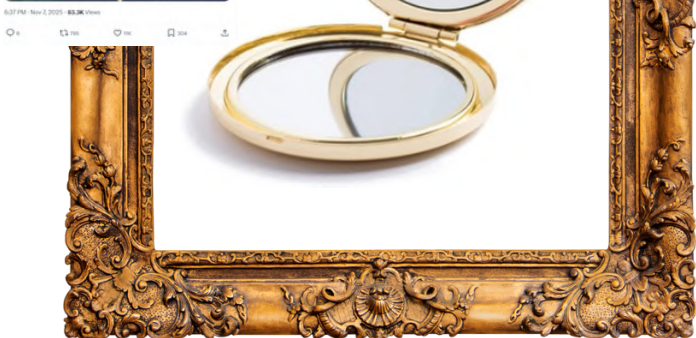

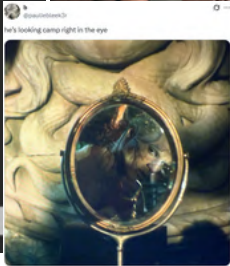

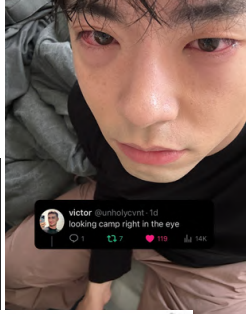

CHAPTER : 1

meme artefacts

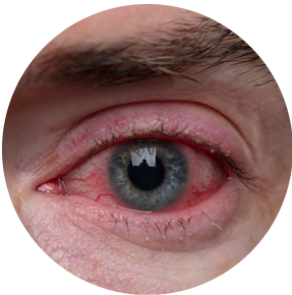

Offline artefacts are everyday objects and spaces that gain meaning through online humor and references. On each page, tell me what meme or cultural reference this artefact relates to and anything additional you would like to include.

memes in the wild

The following memes were photographed inside The Queen Adelaide pub. These memes show how digital humor bleeds into a physical space. How do you read them? Respond however you like.

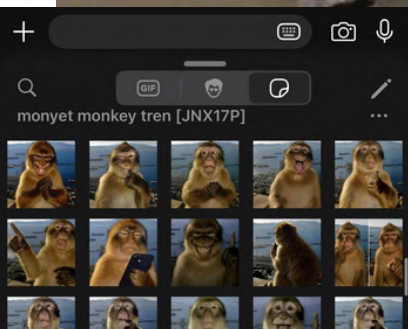

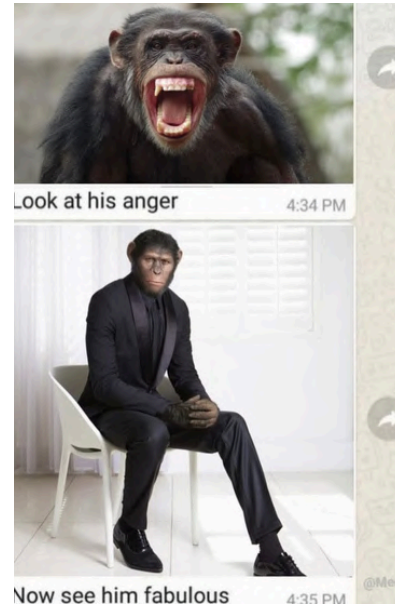

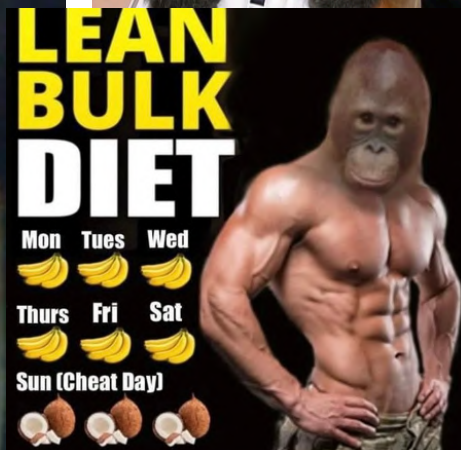

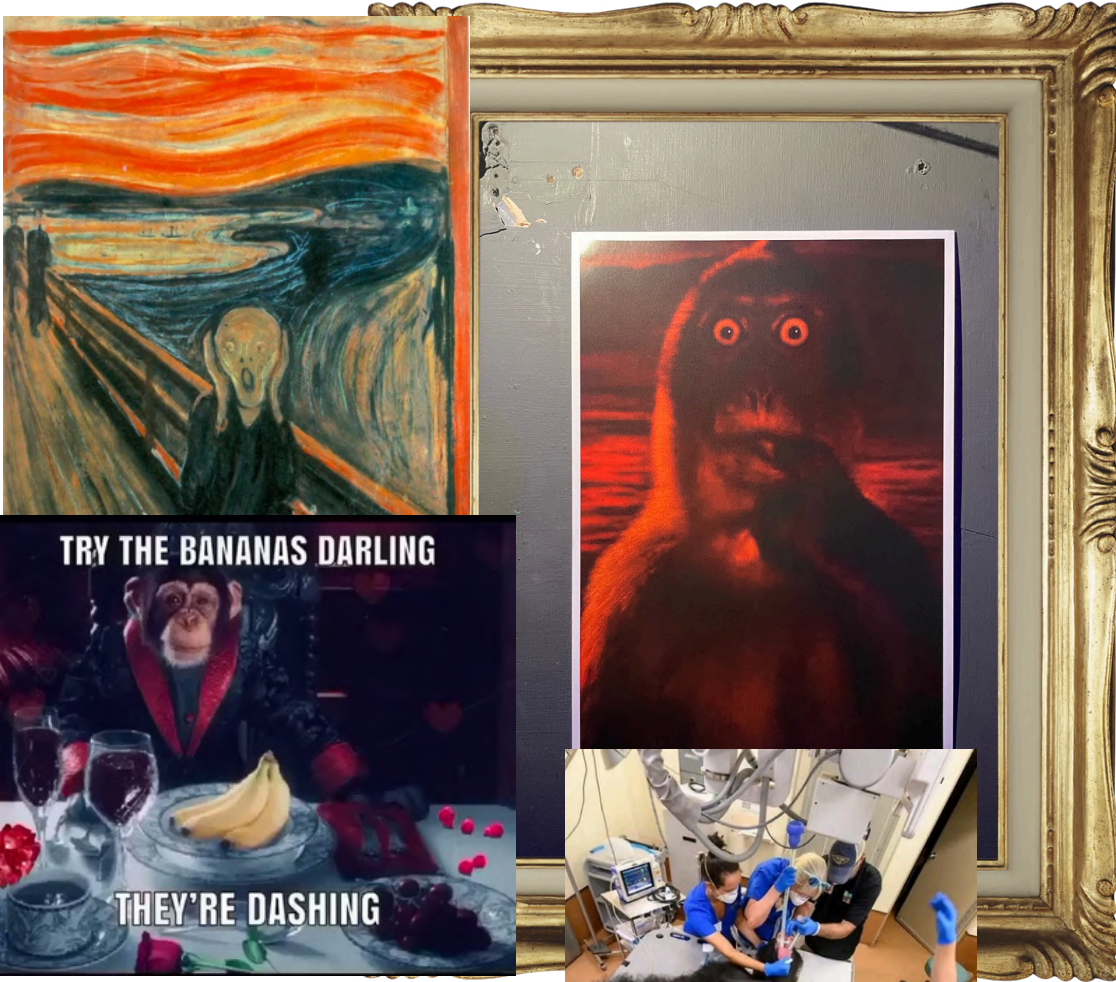

What's your name? B.o.B?
So, they calling you Bob?

we approached them with nothing but RESPECT. 070 was so sweet and willing. the big headed bitch on the right had the craziest attitude. nd she grasping onto shake like someone was tryna
snatch her. girl relax.

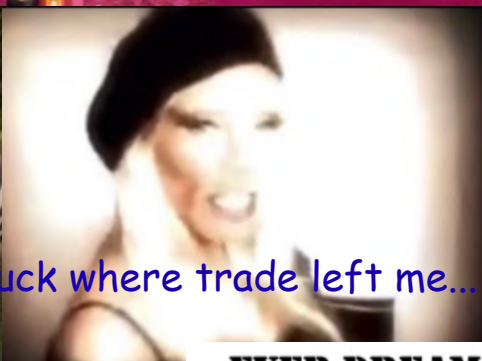

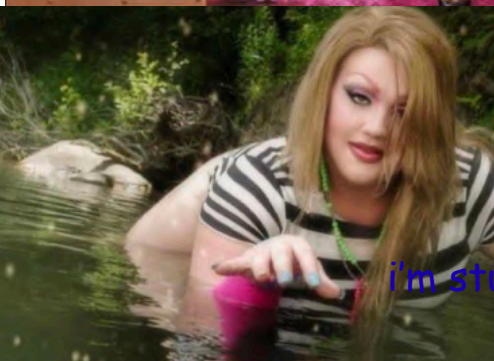

and bitch you're not even fitted.
like yk your new show just came out, you're trending, your dad was just in court. don't walk around soho looking this crazy. trench coat buttoned to the TOP and these ballerina ass slippers. what's going on?

idk is she was coked out or what

calling this a book feels a bit generous idk

I think memes are so important in our current language cause lowkey it hekps to navigate socially awkward discussions like when you dont know how to answer/finish a conversation, when you have to relativize on heavy subjects or when you try to make a political statement. It is such a strenght because it cross borders to the point where Brands, Politicians and more try to use them to appeal to Gen Z
